

The Treaty Making Process

After the arrival of Europeans in Canada, native peoples realized that they were becoming a small minority in their own land. They signed agreements called _____ with the Europeans to accomplish two things:

1.

2.

However, most of these treaties have _____ since neither goal was achieved

Native Peoples

The aboriginal peoples of Canada are actually many distinct peoples who differ greatly in respect to: _____

Over the years that followed, the relationship between the Natives and Europeans _____ drastically. As more and more Europeans arrived, the British government wanted to have control of the _____ used by the natives. In exchange they offered Native people _____ an area of land called a _____ and sometimes _____.

Signing Treaties

| | First Nations | Europeans |
|---------------------------------|---------------|-----------|
| Land | | |
| Wanted | | |
| Experience with Treaties | | |